7 Buildings Damaged in N. Front St. Fire

KINGSTON — For several tense hours Sunday, Kingston's paid and volunteer firemen waged a touch and go battle with a stubborn two-alarm blaze that threatened for a time to destroy a block-long section of stores and apartments along the south side of North Front Street.

The fire, which caused at least some damage to seven buildings between 48-58 North Front Street, wasn't declared officially "out" until 8:08 a.m. today, some 15 hours after the first alarm was sounded.

Firemen arrived at the scene shortly after 5 p. m. Sunday to find heavy fire and smoke emitting from the rear second floor windows at 48 North Front Street. The fire and smoke spread laterally and vertically from that point.

The design and construction of the block-long series of connecting building complicated firefighting efforts. Although the ground-floor shops and stores along the street are separate, all the buildings share a common attic. Firemen were successful in their attempts to prevent the flames from spreading the length of the wood-beamed attic.

Fourteen pieces of equipment were used to battle the fire. Two paid firemen and two civilians suffered minor injuries.

Authorities said today that the cause of the fire remains undetermined. No estimate of monetary damage was available.

First News Conference Set Wednesday

Ford Readies Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford convened his cabinet today to set firm dates for the forthcoming economic summit conference and to begin work on the agenda in hopes of stopping growing inflation.

Ford will hold his first news conference Wednesday on national television and radio but the precise timing and the format have yet to be decided on, according to a White House official.

In advance of the Cabinet meeting, Ford conferred with Kenneth Rush, chairman of the steering committee on the summit conference, and William Seidman, its executive director. Ford plans to preside at some of the summit sessions and to increase public exposure. Some of the meetings may be televised.

The summit was expected to be held at the end of September or the beginning of October. The conference does not preclude earlier decisions on the develop a package approach to solve some of the most pressing problems.

Ford's day of confronting what he terms the nation's No. 1 problem contrasted with his relaxing day Sunday when he played golf and attended a party thrown by a White House reporter.

C. Jackson Grayson, former chairman of the Nixon administration's Price Commission, said unless inflation was eased, the nation might "be back into some form of mandatory wage and price controls by early next year."

Related Stories on Page 20.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary James T. Lynn said the nation's housing situation was of "great concern" to the President, but said there were no quick and easy solutions.

Grayson speculated "if the inflation does not cool somewhat, we may be back into some form of mandatory wage and price controls by early next year despite the desire of many people not to do it."

"Having had to run a program myself, I think mandatory is certainly out and obviously I don't think the present sort of monitoring and jawboning activity is desirable," he said.

White House press corps blossomed further Sunday night at a backyard barbecue at the home of NBC correspondent Ron Nessen.

The President, who appeared in a red plaid sport jacket, open collared shirt, red slacks and white shoes, was invited to the gathering of reporters who covered Ford's vice presidential travels around the country.

Earlier, Ford shot a round of golf with White House staffer Roger White; White's father, William, a U.S. Steel Co. executive, and Fred Zoll, an executive of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co.

He told reporters he had a tough time on the first seven or eight holes but ended up winning $10.

Ford began the day by going to the Immanuel (Episcopal) Church-on-the-Hill with his wife and son, Steven, later stopping by his old house in Alexandria, Va., to pick up his 1931 high school yearbook and a couple of shoe trees.

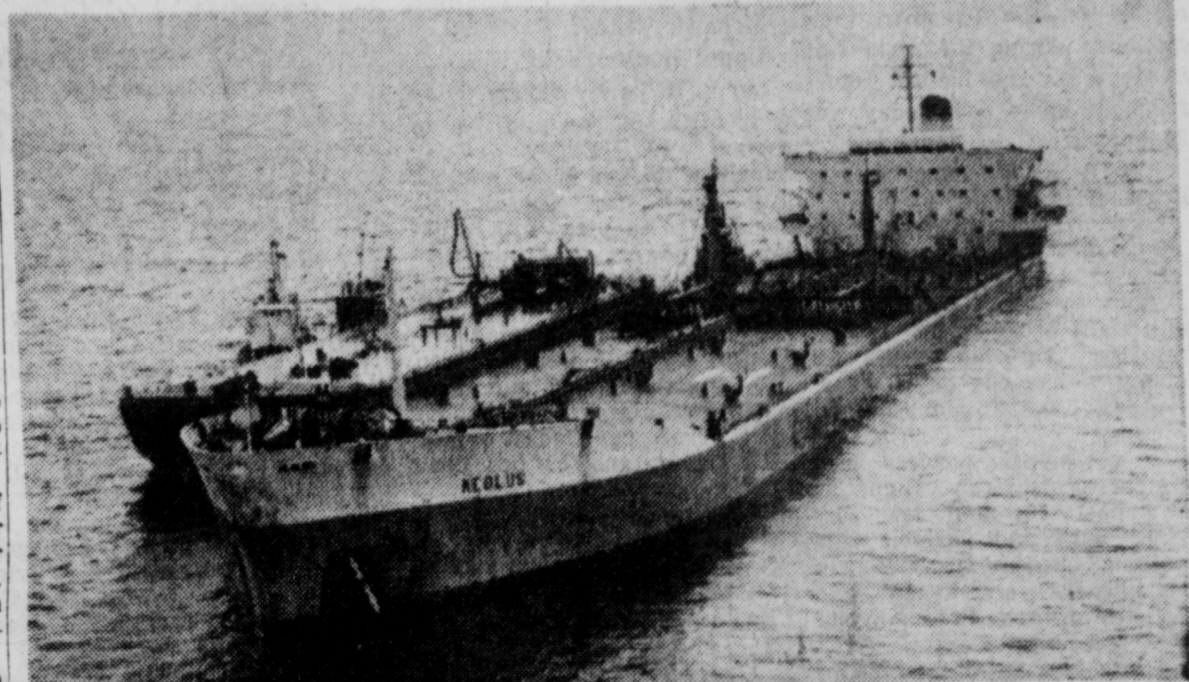

The church sermon was by a woman deacon, the Rev. Patricia M. Park, 27, an assistant rector. She pleaded for acceptance of women in the Episcopal priesthood.

"I congratulated her. I thought it was superb," Ford said when asked what he thought of the sermon.

Asked if he agreed with her controversial position, Ford sidestepped. "I don't think I should comment on it until I know more about it," he said.

HUNG UP—The 799 foot Liberian oil tanker Aeolus lies partially submerged after its engine room became flooded near Ambrose Light, about 15 miles from the mouth of New York Harbor in the Atlantic Ocean. A Coast Guard spokesman at Governor's Island said none of the tanker's 41 crew members was injured or missing and none of the fuel oil spilled into the ocean. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Three Escaped Convicts And a Journey of Murder

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Three desperate convicts on a murderous rampage against those who helped send them to prison were believed hiding in a mesquite-infested prairie today. They were surrounded by policemen armed with shotguns and bloodhounds.

"They're lying low," Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Jim Robinson said. "And we cannot exaggerate or overstate the danger those men impose."

The mother of one pleaded with police to get her son before he can "hurt other people."

Pledging revenge and carrying a death list of those who helped send them to jail, the three convicts shot their way across North Texas over the weekend, leaving behind two dead, five wounded, two kidnaps and rape victims and several wrecked and abandoned cars.

The three-day, 150-mile journey of murder and random violence was halted early Sunday 70 miles southwest of Fort Worth along a seldom traveled dirt road. Their stolen car smashed into an embankment near a farm windmill and the three escaped on foot into thick underbrush familiar to at least one of the convicts.

The trio, who escaped from the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., Thursday, were identified as Dalton Williams, 29, Snyder, Tex., Jerry Ulmer, 22, Garland, Tex., and Richard Magnum, 22, Denver.

The area where they were believed hiding is sparsely populated, rugged and well known to Ulmer.

Williams' mother said her son needed psychiatric help and she hoped he could be captured without bloodshed.

"I don't want him to get out and hurt other people," Mary Jane Collum said. "I'd like for him to have help. He's mixed up."

Ulmer was serving a life sentence in Colorado for murder and Williams was on an indeterminate sentence for armed robbery and assault. Magnum was serving three to five years for joy riding, a form of auto theft.

The three placed stuffed dummies in their bunks Thursday and then breached the wall. The violence began after they stole a car in Colorado and worked their way to Lovington, N. M. There they kidnapped two 23-year-old women and forced them to ride to Rotan, 175 miles east into Texas.

It was there they crossed the first name off the death list, T. L. Baker, 64, a widower who lived alone on a farm, was killed with a shotgun blast. The list was then dropped by Williams, apparently for police to find.

Glasgow said Baker had once testified against Williams in a burglary trial.

The convicts then drove south to Graham where they released the two women, who told police they had been raped. The trio continued on to Breckenridge and took over a sport car at gunpoint.

Late Saturday they escaped from highway patrolmen near Mineral Wells by shooting out the cruiser's windshield and forcing them into a ditch. No one was injured.

On a farm road to the east they shot randomly into a cafe and then sprayed a car at an intersection with shotgun fire, wounding three persons. They then traveled to Gordon, the home of Ray Ott, who had once testified against Ulmer.

Ott's wife, Lena, was shot and killed and Ott was wounded. He was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

A Revealing Ride With an Area Dope Addict

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Freeman police reporter Matt Spireng recently accompanied Hurley State Police BCI investigators as they took an admitted drug addict on a "tour" of the area to be shown where he had committed numerous crimes to support his addiction. The man is, police say, typical of a major problem locally and throughout the nation. The criminal's name has been changed and certain details have been deleted so as not to interfere with the suspect's rights or legitimate police activities.)

KINGSTON

"Joe" is a junky. He has been shooting heroin since he was 15 or 16, quite some years ago judging by his appearance. He supports his habit through criminal activity — burglary, larceny and the like.

There is no accurate measure of what Joe has stolen over the years in Ulster County or elsewhere — despite the fact that he has "agreed" to tell state police BCI investigators of his thefts. Joe has a habit of overlooking the full truth, although he has said he will now tell all.

Still, during only about an hour of riding with Investigators David Wachtel and Francis Petraglia Joe told a lot, pointing out numerous places where he'd stolen items. He also denied taking part in many thefts mentioned to him by the investigators.

Driving past a shopping center, Joe showed Wachtel and Petraglia where he'd taken numerous bicycles in the past.

"I'd just walk over there, jump on a bike and split," Joe said. Then he pointed to a store, saying, "I wanted to hit that place."

Speaking of expensive '10-speed bicycles, Joe said, "We can sell them today like nothing."

The investigators asked Joe about television thefts from motels. He denied taking part, but said he knew how to get rid of stolen televisions: through fences and drug dealers.

"You mean dope dealers will take a TV," Wachtel asked.

"Oh, sure, they'll take a TV in a minute," Joe said.

Joe readily admitted to numerous thefts from cars parked in a shopping center, saying he'd take clothes and other items "Whatever is valuable," he said.

"I never broke into a car though. I'd just wait until the people ran into the store," Joe said.

Asked if he took tape decks, Joe answered, "Yeah, if I had enough time."

As the investigators drove past a car dealership they asked Joe if he'd taken anything there. "I jacked up a car and took the tires. I got $50 a tire," he said, explaining that he also took the rims.

At another store Joe denied breaking in. "I know it's bugged. They have a night watchman there, too."

But he did admit to "boosting" (shoplifting) in several stores.

He pointed out two places where he'd stolen items on order for a fence. "I went through the cellar door there," Joe said. "I went through a little window there."

At the end of an hour Joe had admitted to at least several thousand dollars worth of thefts and burglaries in the area.

Back at the state police barracks Wachtel and Petraglia indicated, out of earshot of Joe, that "he is still holding back."

Further questioning during ensuing days turned up six burglaries Joe would admit to in addition to those he'd pointed out during the hour ride with the investigators.

And investigators think he is still holding back. "He had to be doing more than he is admitting to in order to support his habit," one investigator said. Joe's addiction is estimated at a $40 to $50 a day habit.

Joe did admit to pharmacy thefts in other areas of the state when he was younger. "We'd hide in the store until it closed. Then we'd get the stuff ready and when the man outside drove up we'd smash the window and jump out. Even if there was an alarm we'd be gone before they (police) got there."

In Ulster County Joe said he walked and hitchhiked his way to most of his thefts.

"Do you think smoking grass leads to the hard stuff?" Wachtel asked Joe at one point.

Readily admitting that he started down the road that led him to where he is today by using marijuana, Joe answered, however, "No. Only a very small percentage of those who smoke use hard stuff."

"Why did you go onto the hard stuff?" Wachtel asked.

"I was a young kid, 15 or 16," Joe answered.

A HABIT SUPPORTED BY CRIME

'Undercover' Explanation Rapped

Ray Davis, a former first sergeant in the Ulster County Sheriff's Department, issued a press release today scoffing at Ulster County Sheriff William B. Martin's explanation that a fugitive from justice, out on bail from the jail yet employed by his department, was actually an undercover agent, as a "Batman and Robin Comic Book" attempt to justify his latest outrage against the community.

Davis called the story "an insult to the intelligence of every taxpayer in this county."

"The sheriff's attempt to cover up the facts on the fugitive from justice on his payroll uncovered by the journalistic investigations of a local reporter," said Davis, "is the ultimate in arrogance."

It was first reported in the Daily Freeman last Wednesday that Jerome Gabell, arrested as a fugitive from justice from Sussex County, N. J., and Dade County, Fla., was on the Sheriff's Department payroll, listed as a deputy sheriff. Martin said the payroll was in error.

and that Gabell was performing had been an undercover agent. "The current sheriff must be the winner of the 1974 Annual Award for Disservice to the Community," said Davis.

Dutchess Fair Closes

RHINEBECK "We had a real lot of happy people here," reported Sam Lloyd, secretary-manager of the Dutchess County Fair, as the fair's attendance figure hit 181,490 at its close, Sunday.

Lloyd said the 1974 attendance figure was less than last year's record, but "not very much."

He said the attendance was held back by some bad weather, with "high humidity" holding down the Wednesday crowd, and "threatening skies until 3 p.m." keeping the Friday attendance down slightly. Last year's edition of the fair had "absolutely perfect weather every day," Lloyd said.

Though the attendance figure might have been off slightly, the number of participants in the fair was up. "A diversified group of exhibitors" was up slightly over last year, Lloyd said, but he pointed out that number is limited by space. "We have reached our capacity," he said.

The number of entrants in the fair's judgings was up by about 10 per cent "right across the board," Lloyd reported. Live stock judging was up, with a large number of local entries. Lloyd called the fruit and vegetable show "the best show we've ever had."

Lloyd noted that there was a trend toward a greater number of entries from "backyard vegetable growers," people prompted by the rising cost of food to grow their own, and doing so, the fair's last day.

successfully that they were worthy of contest entry.

The horticulture show was "absolutely the finest one I've ever seen any place," Lloyd said.

The talent tent was "at capacity," a new Woman's World area proved very popular, a new children's area, with performances every half hour, delighted the tots, and the Dancing Waters Inc. of Port Ewen was again a popular attraction, Lloyd said.

The new, improved parking lot at the fairgrounds was "one of the very best things we've ever done," said Lloyd. He reported that traffic tie-ups were minimal, with the longest being only about 20 minutes on Sunday, the fair's last day.

"for his 'Batman and Robin Comic Book' attempt to justify his latest outrage against the community."

"The current sheriff," said Davis, "or should we call him the 'Caped Crusader', dropped his so-called secret agent like a hot potato the day after the story made page one headlines."

"Does the present 'never available' sheriff really think that the Ulster County community is naive enough to swallow the latest hit of cloak and dagger, secret agent TV fiction used to cover up the employment of a fugitive from justice as an Ulster County deputy sheriff?" asked Davis.

"The present sheriff's admission that you can walk out of the new $3 million Ulster County Jail with a 30 cent handcuff key is another indication of the disorderly condition of the Sheriff's Department," stated Davis.

Meeting on Woodstock Sewage Plans

WOODSTOCK An informational meeting on the proposed Woodstock sewage system will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Woodstock Elementary School.

Topics to be considered at Tuesday's meeting include the proposed area that will be covered by the sewage district, possible methods of financing and cost-sharing and estimated costs for various categories of taxpayers.

Presiding over the meeting will be a panel comprised of members of the Woodstock Town Board, the Woodstock Conservation Commission, the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, the Ulster County Health Department and the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios. They will be available to answer questions from the audience.

Tuesday's meeting, sponsored by the Woodstock Commission for the Conservation of the Environment, is open to all town residents. The sponsoring organization, in urging as many residents as possible to attend, stated: "The construction of a sewage system, which has been under discussion for over a decade, is a major town project profoundly affecting the quality of the environment, and involving a serious commitment of all citizens of Woodstock. Discussion at this meeting will affect the final details of the proposal to the voters."

Libraries Set For Area Fair

CHATHAM The Mid-Hudson Library System and its associated member public libraries in Columbia County will participate in an exhibit of what the modern public library offers in the way of additional services at the Columbia County Fair at Chatham, Aug. 29-Sept. 2.

Among the many attractions to be displayed at the library system's booth are film showings selected for their proven popularity with viewing audiences of all ages at previous county fairs.

In addition to Columbia County, the Mid-Hudson Library System supplies library resource materials as well as professional consultant services to public libraries in the counties of Dutchess, Greene, Putnam and Ulster.

France Ending A-Tests

France's Defense Minister Jacques Soufflet intimates that current atomic test explosions in the Pacific are "the last to be conducted in the atmosphere." The only fitting response from the rest of the world must be: It's about time!

This year is the 11th anniversary of the partial test ban in which the United States and the Soviet Union renounced all but underground nuclear test blasts. Many other countries have joined in this undertaking. France and China are notable abstainers, and each has repeatedly conducted atmospheric tests.

The two nuclear powers which continue to be holdouts against the ban on tests in the atmosphere are equally blameworthy. The onus must fall more heavily on France, however, as a part of the free world. The fate of France is clearly bound in with that of other nations of the West, whose leaders are committed to a policy of seeking to reduce the threat of nuclear war.

That policy has to some extent been weakened by France's persistence in carrying on atmospheric tests over a period of years despite worldwide protests. Therefore, while it is gratifying that the French seem to be on the point of ending such tests, one can only say they should have done so long ago.

Soviet Political Courage

Often a politician who follows his conscience, which politicians ought to do in any case, gets credit for a courageous political act. "Political" courage of a higher order is demonstrated by dissidents in the Soviet Union — by their issuance, for example, of another edition of the Chronicle of Current Events in the face of harsh Kremlin opposition.

The courageous politician in our country may risk his office, perhaps even his political future. Those who put out the Chronicle, which is retyped and passed around despite official efforts to stamp it out, risk imprisonment or other forms of retribution. Among other things the latest edition details the fate of two dissidents who were sentenced to the infamous labor camps such as Alexander Solzhenitsyn has described. Facing punishment of this kind, yet persisting in calling the Kremlin to task for its repression of liberty — that puts ordinary "political courage" to shame.

Voyage to Los Angeles

Typically, the fellow who plans a long solo voyage across the cruel sea lets this be known long in advance. That results in stories about preparations, the intrepid sailor's philosophy and dreams, the anticipated dangers and glories of this heroic venture.

Sometimes it gets a little old, as the saying goes. One wishes the man would simply get on with it, if he's so all-fired set on braving the tempestuous waters.

This, it is refreshing to note, is exactly what Kiyomi Yamashita did. He arrived quietly in Los Angeles Harbor the other day, having steered his 21-foot sailboat Ginga (The Milky Way) along the Great Circle route from Japan. Hardly anyone — no one at all on this side of the water — knew about it; no one was on hand to greet him and offer champagne toasts.

The clue to this self-effacing behavior lies in Yamashita's nature. He saw nothing particularly heroic in the voyage. It seems he had wanted to go to Los Angeles, and this was a way to do that.

Let it be noted that Yamashita's low-key attitude does not alter the salient fact that matching a 21-foot boat against the great Pacific over a course of several thousand miles is a remarkable feat. We salute him, both for that and for his modest handling of the adventurer's role.

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Public statements to the contrary, Greece is already making plans to shut down every NATO base in the country within a year, thus leaving a gaping hole in the fabric of the Western world's defense systems.

So secret are the new Athenian civilian government's plans that even top U.S. officials are unaware of the seriousness of the threat. Just a few days ago, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger was speaking honestly when he said he had "little indication" of such a move.

Our information, however, from high but confidential diplomatic sources who backed up their talk with documents, is that the NATO shutdown is already a matter of Athens policy, barring a radical change in the current U.S. attitude towards Cyprus.

The importance of the Greek NATO bases is difficult to overestimate. Naval, bomber, missile and communications facilities in Greece give NATO a striking power directly beneath the belly of Soviet Russia and her satellites.

At the same time that Greece was setting its course on NATO, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was assuring a private meeting with President Ford and Republican leaders that the U.S. policy on Cyprus in neutral.

"We have made major efforts to elicit concessions from both the Greeks and the Turks," he said, according to confidential minutes of the White House meeting. "We will take a new look if the Turks cross the cease-fire line."

The restive Republicans wondered why Kissinger had not simply halted aid to Turkey. Kissinger replied, according to the minutes, that this "would not have stopped the three-day occupation."

Indeed, Kissinger warned, such drastic action "would have enormous consequences on NATO, Turkish nationalism and (the) possible approach to the Soviet Union." One "possible solution," Kissinger said, "may be a federalized republic or a Cantonal structure" — in short, a semi-partitioning of Cyprus with Greece and Turkey each controlling part of the island.

Added President Ford hopefully, "I think we'll come out all right as friend of both parties."

Kissinger also met privately with five congressmen of Greek descent who gave him a far more obstreperous going over than the Republican leaders. One of the Greek-American legislators who attended the off-record meeting told us they tore into Kissinger "in a manner to which he is unaccustomed."

The congressmen were Louis Bafalis, R-Fla., John Brademas, D-Ind., Peter Kyros, D-Me., Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., and Gus Yatron, D-Pa. At one point, they told Kissinger he was personally responsible for a "grievous policy... The U.S. has egg all over its face."

The strong-willed Kissinger was "patient" but "stuttered, reeled back and reddened" under the onslaught, we were told. At one point he left the meeting for a telephone conversation with Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit. But at the end of the meeting, Kissinger courteously invited the lawmakers to come back again.

Despite appearances of even-handedness, we are told by high diplomatic sources that Kissinger tentatively and confidentially agreed in recent meetings with British Ambassador Peter Ramsbotham to a Cyprus plan drawn up in London.

To the distress of the Greeks, it would, in effect, chop Cyprus into Greek and Turkish enclaves. The Turks would make an ostentatious pull-back to a line running across the northern third of the island to pacify world opinion — a move they had intended anyway.

When the plan was delicately put to deposed Cypriot president Archbishop Makarios in London by Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, the peppery Makarios was outraged, we were told.

In Athens, Greek leaders are also fuming. For years, they have gone along with almost every twist and turn in American policy, while the Turks have often refused to cooperate with Washington. A few weeks ago, for instance, Turkey defied the United States and resumed cultivation of opium.

Meanwhile, we have learned that Athens risked her good relations with the Arabs by secretly permitting the United States to use Greek NATO bases for shuttling supplies to Israel during the Middle East war last October. As a result, Israel is secretly grateful to Greece and hopes it will keep its NATO ties.

During the October War, Greece also allowed U.S. intelligence services to use a communications station outside Athens to monitor Soviet and Arab radio broadcasts. Turkey, on the other hand, reportedly permitted the Soviets to overfly her territory to deliver arms to the Arabs.

Footnote: At the State Department, a spokesman denied Greek bases were used by the United States to resupply Israel. He also said the British initiative was not yet "developed." It does not have any "arms or legs" yet, he said.

NIXON TAPES: The Watergate defendants sought postponement of their upcoming trial in part because they have not had time to study the new batch of Nixon tapes released under the Supreme Court's 8-0 ruling.

Sources from the old Nixon White House tell us the tapes will prove a grueling study for defendants and prosecutors alike. They contain many gaps, distortions, and unintelligible passages. Some gaps could have been caused by technical difficulties, but other gaps occur at suspicious points in the White House conversations.

One tape, according to our sources, was broken in half and then spliced back together. But the two halves are unrelated to one another.

Another tape was cut in half and presented to Judge John Sirica in two boxes. Nixon's attorney at the time, James St. Clair, opened the boxes in front of prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste. The second box, astonishingly, was empty.

Dismayed, St. Clair mumbled to Ben-Veniste: "Pardon me while I have a heart attack."

Inside Report

Choosing Rockefeller

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Fully five days before he nominated Nelson A. Rockefeller for Vice President, President Ford confided to longtime advisers a set of guidelines that could lead him in no other direction. He was not, the new President said, interested in ticket-balancing considerations for 1976, much less 1980. Rather, he wanted someone of presidential stature with an established reputation. What's more, he was getting strong recommendations from his transition staff to break with 200 years of tradition and actually put his Vice President to good use.

Given those standards, the ultimate choice was bound to be Rockefeller. The reason it seemed less than inevitable last week was a publicly lukewarm attitude within the Republican party's dominant conservative wing, and overt though private opposition on Mr. Ford's own staff. That he overrode these considerable bases of resistance reveals much about the future course of the Ford presidency and the inner confidence of the President.

Even before Richard Nixon's resignation, Mr. Ford was getting a strong — and totally sincere — recommendation for Rockefeller from his former House colleague and longtime adviser, Melvin R. Laird. But Laird made that proposal publicly as well as privately, leading to erroneous speculation from some Ford staffers that Laird was trying to knock down Rockefeller to boost himself.

Laird's surfacing of Rockefeller did produce a surprisingly strong counter-campaign for Republican national chairman George Bush, basically from conservative elements of the party. Far more important, however, was anti-Rockefeller sentiment from Mr. Ford's personal staff, who feared that the famous multimillionaire with his international reputation and vast personnel resources would smother his chief. That opposition became so intense that some Rockefeller boosters feared the choice would go to Bush.

Such pessimism, however, did not take account of several factors. Some of the most powerful Southern Democrats in Congress, including the respected Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the uncharacteristically fostered for Rockefeller to press national reconciliation and ease deepening fears in the financial community. Nor was Mr. Ford's closest personal aide, Robert Hartmann, nearly as fearful of Rockefeller as nonpolitical staffers.

Most important was the remorseless trend in Mr. Ford's own thinking as reflected in confidential conversations last week. In no uncertain terms, the President rejected any consideration of the fitness of his Vice President as a runningmate in 1976 or as a presidential candidate in 1980.

That Rockefeller at 72 will be too old to run for President in 1980, Mr. Ford smilingly told one political intimate, might be a reason in Mel Laird's opinion for picking him now but not in his; it made absolutely no difference.

What's more, Mr. Ford gave the strong impression that he was not interested in his new Vice President as a political barnstormer, the role he himself performed the last eight months, knocking the props from under a major portion of Bush's supporters.

Moreover, the President is getting detailed reports from his transition team, headed by Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld and former Gov. William W. Scranton, recommending that the President make extensive and unprecedented use of the Vice President in domestic affairs. That suggested the selection of somebody with wide experience and competence in government — such as Rockefeller, Laird or possibly Rumsfeld.

But in private conferences last week, Mr. Ford provided the dead giveaway that it would be Rockefeller: he wanted a Vice President with stature, experience, and the ability to instill confidence both here and abroad — the exact qualifications laid down by Laird in recommending Rockefeller.

Mr. Ford indicated that Bush lacked the reputation and experience. Indeed, given those criteria, Rockefeller led all others, even Laird.

A runaway Vice President Rockefeller so feared by Ford staffers was correctly discounted by key outside advisers. Laird, who golfed with the President Sunday, argued that Rockefeller is a team player. One New York Republican not always on the best of terms with Rockefeller praised his loyalty and his "reverence" for the presidency. A factor to which he attributed Rockefeller's defense of Mr. Nixon's Vietnam policy despite personal doubts.

Except for a few hardcore critics, including Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Rockefeller choice produced another wave of euphoria in Republican cloakrooms on Capitol Hill, still celebrating Mr. Nixon's demise. It symbolized dramatic Ford divergences from the Nixon standard: tacit deemphasis in the Southern strategy, resistance to pressure from the Republican right, rejection of overprotective staff impulses and the belated end of exile for the Eastern Republican establishment. In that sense the deeper meaning of the Rockefeller choice is what it shows about Gerald Ford.

Doctor Needed Rather Than Judge

The dust is beginning to settle. We, the people, are beset by two groups of vindictives: (1) those who say, "Drop it. Forget it. He has suffered the ultimate degradation," (2) others who say, "He's just plain old Richard Nixon now. Go get him. Indict him, Sue him. Throw him in jail."

A long way back I tossed a thought into a column — timidly, I admit — that there was a possibility that, as President, Richard Nixon was not a healthy man. I did not and do not think that he is psychotic, but I felt that his judgment, so important to the welfare of the U.S., was impaired.

As the walls of his Presidency fell, shattering in the final days, the White House press corps stressed that Nixon was "serene." Senators Scott and Goldwater, after a final conference, depicted Nixon as almost jaunty, with his feet up on the desk. Others said he was "remote" — not in touch with reality.

If Nixon is to face future danger, either as an "indicted co-conspirator" in Watergate, or as a reluctant government witness at the Ehrlichman and Haldeman trials, he has but two choices: to plead the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination, or to admit to the truth of what he has said on tapes, which could be an admission of guilt.

He cannot seek help from those in Congress who now commiserate with his plight, men who wept with him as they sharpened the axe to behead the President. Congress cannot intervene with the Department of Justice or the pending work of Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. They can pass a "Sense of the Congress" resolution that he be left in peace. That's all.

Nor can President Ford pardon a man for crimes he has not confessed to. There is a grim question in my mind whether Nixon is truly aware that the acts perpetrated in the White House were criminal in nature. He reminds me of a little boy who, having set fire to a closet while his mother is out shopping, slams the closet door, sure that the fire will go away.

From January 20, 1969, until now, he has been secretive, humorless, isolated, busy plotting against those he felt were plotting against him. Eric Sevareid said he hoped that someone would someday explain the two Nixons to him — the urbane, precise man on television versus the screaming, blaspheming, ashtray-tossing behind the scenes.

Certainly, I cannot do it. Where in the world can anyone find a man engaged in obstruction of justice who, to make certain he will be exposed, bugs himself and forget to burn the tapes? Who pledges full cooperation with congressional committees when, to do so, it amounts to self-incrimination?

Who in his right mind selects a man of the integrity of Archibald Cox and then fires him and sends an attorney general packing? Who indeed?

What man, pledging to fight inflation, would admit on tape that he doesn't want to hear about the devaluations of the British pound and Italian lira because they are "complex. I don't understand it."

Years before my name appeared on the White House "Enemies List," Mr. Nixon, as Vice President, regarded me as his friend. He confided in me, and I have not violated his confidence. However, even in those days, he was frank to admit that, "It's Pat and me against the world. Nobody ever gave us anything. In the game plan, you take your enemies out or they'll take you out."

In the end, it was General Alexander Haig and James St. Clair who led him gently, blubbery with tears, towards the gallows. He told us the reason he resigned was because he had lost his "power base," the votes in Congress. Subliminally, it is their fault!

Not his.

It was Haig who had that helicopter ready on the south lawn; it was Haig who drew up the summary timetable so that there was no time to change the Presidential mind. He was being pushed firmly by one who still admires Nixon.

My opinion has no legal standing, but I say enough. One man wrote that when Nixon reached San Clemente, he shut the phone service off. He was like a kid who climbed into a little tree house and pulled the ladder up behind him.

I am almost obsessed by this feeling that, inside Nixon, he still feels that he did nothing wrong in abusing the F.B.I., the C.I.A. and the I.R.S. They are Presidential weapons to be used against the "enemy." If his judgment is distinguishing between right and wrong is impaired, I suggest that a doctor is more pertinent at this stage than a judge...

DeSeversky Dead at 80, Aviation Pioneer

NEW YORK (AP) — Major Alexander P. de Seversky, pioneer aviator whose wartime inventions were instrumental in buoying United States air power in World War II, is dead at 80.

De Seversky died Saturday of a respiratory ailment at Memorial Hospital here.

In addition to being a zealous proponent of strategic air power, de Seversky was a major inventor whose work included design of the P-35 fighter and its modification, the Thunderbolt. For the project, President Franklin D. Roosevelt presented de Seversky with the Medal of Merit — the highest wartime honor for a civilian.

In another major development, de Seversky worked with Dr. Elmer Sperry Sr. to lay the groundwork for all gyroscopically stabilized flight instruments, which made the automatic pilot possible.

De Seversky was born in Tiflis, Russia, and was introduced as a man-pilot. Graduating from the Military School of Aviation, de Seversky flew his first combat mission for the Russian Imperial Navy in 1915 and was

When it closed during the Russian revolution, he remained to become a test pilot and engineer.

In 1921, de Seversky developed in-flight fueling techniques and later invented the first fully automatic synchronous bombsight. The bombsight patent produced $50,000 and he formed his first company, Seversky Aero Corp.

Later he became known as author of "Victory Through Air Power," subsequently filmed by Walt Disney, which he wrote to dispel apathy in the face of Nazi strength.

At the time of his death, de Seversky worked daily as president and chairman of the board of Seversky Electromotom Corp.

A Russian Orthodox funeral service was planned Tuesday at Frank E. Campbell funeral home here.

Seek Clues in Murder

ELLENVILLE — State police are still searching for substantial leads in the apparent murder of a 25-year-old Kerhonkson man, who was shot three times late Friday or early Saturday by a yet unidentified assailant.

Efraim F. Bello, an employee at the Channel Master plant in Ellenville, died at 12:22 p. m. Saturday at Kingston Hospital. He was shot once in the head and once in the back; a third shot grazed his shoulder. Ulster County Coroner Arthur A. Chipp, who directed an autopsy Saturday, said Bello died from the head wound.

Bello's body was found lying beside his car at an overlook on Route 44-55 (Minnewaska Trail), about three miles from Route 209. Troopers P. J. Brennan and R. B. Snyder found the body early Saturday morning.

State police BCI Investigator E. V. Whelan said today that authorities believe Bello was socializing in New Paltz Friday night, shortly before he was killed. They are attempting to trace persons who might have had contact with the murdered man that evening, and they have requested anyone who saw Bello Friday night to contact the Ellenville state police headquarters.

It is believed that the weapon used in the apparent homicide was a .38 caliber revolver.

British Soldier Killed by Sniper

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Snipers shot and killed a British Army soldier with a hail of high velocity bullets today as he rode in a patrol car 20 miles southwest of Belfast, security forces said.

The trooper was dead on arrival at a military hospital.

An Army spokesman said other members of the patrol fired back at the gunmen at an intersection in the village of Cregavon, but apparently scored no hits.

The shooting boosted the death toll in more than five years of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland to 1,066.

Police said meanwhile that they have ordered three youths charged in court in what could be a new assassination method in northern Ireland — killing by automobile.

They said an 18-year-old Roman Catholic youth was killed and four other persons critically injured in a Catholic enclave Friday when two cars hit them on the sidewalk.

Police said if it proved to be part of the province's Protestant anti-Catholic strife, it would be the first such killing.

Ship Rams Drawbridge, Canal Traffic Is Closed

WELLAND, Ont. (UPI) — Authorities estimated today that the Welland Canal could be closed to traffic for up to two weeks following an accident Sunday in which a ship rammed a closed drawbridge. Injuries were reported, officials said.

Authorities said the bridge was destroyed and could cost an estimated $20 million to replace. One official estimated damage to the vessel, the Steelton of U.S. registry, at $1 million.

A spokesman for the St. Lawrence Seaway said the ship, bound downriver from Buffalo, rammed the Port Robinson Bridge at about 4 a. m. No injuries were reported, officials said.

Officials declined to comment on how the accident occurred but promised a full investigation of the mishap.

"That bridge is just a twisted, mangled piece of junk right now," the spokesman said. "There is no traffic upbound or downbound, the Welland is closed."

Malcolm Campbell, director of the seaway's western region, said the main concern was to get the bridge out of the 27-foot deep canal.

"Our main concern right now is to get the bridge out of the water and the canal operating."

Campbell said. "That's a major job in itself."

The seaway is a vital link between American and Canadian Great Lakes ports and the Atlantic Ocean, with grain, coal and steel some of the major cargoes carried through the system.

Three Killed on Thruway As Car Hits Stone Wall

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — police reported.

Two men and a teenager were killed and a fourth person was seriously injured late Sunday night, when their car crashed into a stone wall on the New York State Thruway, state Troopers identified the victims as Bobby Jenkins, 17, also of the New York City, was in serious condition at Phelps Hospital in Tarrytown.

Jaenisch-Ross Nuptials

Jill Beth Jaenisch, daughter of Mrs. Bea Jaenisch, 85 Augusta Street, Kingston, and Walter Jaenisch, of Albany, became the bride of A.G.A.A. Frederic Randolph Ross, U.S. Navy, step-son and son respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, Box 95, South Road, Ruby.

The Rev. Donald Crum officiated at the ceremony at First Baptist Church, Albany Avenue, Kingston. Pianist Harry Watson provided traditional wedding selections and accompanied soloist, Mrs. Linda Longendyke.

The bride selected a white gown of Chantilly lace with a bouffant silhouette. The Empire styling fashioned with Renaissance sleeves and ring collar featured a Chantilly lace bodice accented with sprinkles of sequins. A hemline flounce of Chantilly lace encircled the skirt and the attached cathedral train. Her Juliet headpiece was a three tiered cathedral length mantilla trimmed with matching Chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of white roses and white pompons.

Mrs. David (Valary) Lee of Hesperia, Calif., was matron of honor for her sister, in a sleeveless, scooped-neck orchid chiffon gown in the Empire styling with a matching jacket trimmed with pastel variegated embroidery. Her Juliet cap of matching color with lace and pearl trim was secured to two tiers of waist length veiling and she carried a cascade of cornflowers, miniature carnations and eucalyptus.

Attendants were Miss Judy Doyle, Elmendorf Street, Kingston, and Miss Yvonne Jaenisch, Saratoga Springs, cousin of the bride. Miss Ruth Jaenisch, Castleton, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. Attendants' gowns in lilac were styled identically to the honor attendant's. They wore similar headpieces and carried a similar floral cascades. The flower girl wore orchid chiffon styled similarly to the adult attendants. She wore a wreath of cornflowers and miniature carnations in her hair and carried a basket of same.

F. N. Theodore Ross, U.S. Navy, brother of the bridegroom was best man. Ushering were T-Sgt David Lee, U.S. Air Force, brother-in-law of the bride, and Robert Jaenisch, brother of the bride. Kelf Jaenisch, the bride's nephew, was ring bearer.

A reception took place at the Holiday Inn.

The bride, a 1973 graduate of Kingston High School and a BOCES graduate nurse, had been employed at the Ulster County Infirmary.

The bridegroom is a 1972 alumnus of Kingston High School and was a student of Brockport College prior to his enlistment in the U.S. Navy.

After their short wedding trip to the Adirondacks, the couple left for a two year residency at the naval base on the Island of Guam.

Miss Dale Barringer Is Bride of Barry W. Gray

Dale Barringer of Krumville and Barry W. Gray of Kerhonkson, were united in marriage Saturday, July 27 at Krumville Dutch Reformed Church. The Rev. George Wood officiated at the double ceremony. Mrs. Kenneth Smith, organist, accompanied Oscar Christensen who sang wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Barringer of Krumville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Anna Gray, Kerhonkson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a traditional white gown styled with a Chantilly lace bodice and dacron-crepe polyester skirt in the Empire line. Her shoulder-length headpiece was made of Chantilly lace and silk. She carried a bouquet of carnations, roses, baby's breath and pompons, all white, with ivy accents.

Mrs. Jane Van Etten of Waterbury, Conn., was matron of honor in a pink flocking crepe gown with a matching bow. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and pompons.

Attendants were Kathy Kennedy, Patricia Barringer, sister of the bride, both of Accord, Connie Rider, niece of the bride, Accord, and Regina Smith of Kerhonkson, served as flower girls. Attendants wore gowns styled with pink flocking crepe bodices and solid pink crepe skirts with matching bows. The flower girls' gowns of white flocking crepe were similar in styling to the attendants'. All gowns were made by the bride. They carried bouquets of carnations and pompons.

Theron Gray, brother of the bridegroom, Kerhonkson, was best man. Ushers were Wayne Gundberg, Accord; Peder Jacobsen, Stone Ridge.

Donald Rider of Accord served as ringbearer.

A reception was given at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, a graduate of Ontario High School, is employed by Dr. Edmund Tomaselli, Woodstock. Her husband is employed by Clayton Barringer and Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside in Krumville after a wedding trip to Niagara Falls.

Men Take Over Fair Demonstration Kitchen

The mountains of Peru and the lakes of Ireland have produced two internationally acclaimed chefs whose culinary talents will be on display at the 1974 Food Demonstration Kitchen at the New York State Fair in Syracuse August 27 through September 2.

Felipe Rojas-Lombardi, a New York City resident for the past seven years, is the author of "Game Cookery" with George Plimpton which won the best book award at the 1973 Philadelphia Book Show. The noted cooking authority and columnist is in the process of publishing the "Everyone Can Cook Book" and already has a best seller, "The A to Z No-Cook Cookbook." In addition, his comprehensive book of "Kitchen Design" is scheduled for publication in 1975.

Born in Lima, Peru, Felipe learned the basics of the cooking art from European chefs who worked at the Rojas-Lombardi home where his father continually entertained visitors to Lima. Later Felipe studied under the world's leading chefs, and worked with James Beard for four years at his cooking school in Greenwich Village.

His demonstrations will be "Easy Cooking for all Ages," "Duck Dinner — Game or Tame," and "Chicken and Fettuccine" at 11 a.m., 2 p.m., and 5:45 p.m., respectively, on Tuesday, August 27; "Easy Cooking for all Ages," "Steak and Salad with a Unique Touch," and "Elegant But Easy Fish Cookery" at 11 a.m., 2 p.m., and 5:45 p.m. on Wednesday August 28; and "Chicken and Fettuccine," "Peruvian Surprise," and "Duck Dinner — Game or Tame" at the same hours on Thursday, August 29.

Former British Army Officer Maurice Moore-Betty, owner of "The Civilized Art" cooking school in New York City, was brought up on "memorable, if sometimes odd" meals in his native Ireland. Moore-Betty's interest in good food was cultivated further as a cotton and tobacco grower in the Sudan and Southern Rhodesia, and during World War II campaigns that took him throughout Europe and the Far East.

With the advent of peacetime, he determined to become even more knowledgeable about the culinary arts and on an impulse at the Ritz in London asked to work in the kitchen in any capacity. The result was an apprenticeship in all areas of the kitchen. After a year, he opened his own restaurant. Then, through the encouragement of a food editor he opened what has since become one of the most prestigious cooking schools in the world.

Moore-Betty is the author of such books as "Cooking for Occasions," and "The Maurice Moore-Betty Cooking School Book of Fine Cooking."

Moore-Betty's specialties at the fair will be deep dish apple pie, iced coffee mousse, and "Dolce Maddalena," made with marsala wine, macaroons, cheesecake filling, candied fruit, chocolate and eggs. His demonstrations will be conducted on Saturday, August 31, at 11:15 a.m., 2 p.m., and 5:45 p.m.

Fairgoers will be able to obtain his and other demonstrators' recipes free at the demonstrations by picking up the commemorative "Super Fare" cookbook compiled by the Art & Home Center in honor of the Center's 40th anniversary. The cookbook will also contain recipes of favorites from the past 40 years.

Here is a recipe by Felipe Rojas-Lombardi which will not be demonstrated at the fair but will afford any home maker a delightful change of pace:

Eggs Provencale

24 eggs

One-half cup grated Parmesan cheese
One-half cup crushed soda crackers or English water biscuits
One teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
Two teaspoons salt
One teaspoon sweet basil
One-half teaspoon tabasco

FOR THE SAUCE:

Six large tomatoes, quartered
Two medium carrots, sliced
Four cloves or garlic, crushed
Two large onions, sliced thin
Two teaspoons sugar
Three-fourths cup of chicken stock
One bay leaf
Two sprigs parsley
Salt & pepper to taste

1. Break the eggs into a mixing bowl and whisk lightly.
2. Add the grated Parmesan cheese, the crushed cracker crumbs, the seasonings and mix well.
3. Spoon two tablespoons of the egg mixture into a well buttered and well heated omelet pan or teflon skillet (8-10 inch) and spread around the pan so that is about one-eighth inch thick. Brown on both sides turning once during the cooking. Remove the crepes to a plate and stack them.

4. When they are all cooked, roll each one as you would a jelly roll and slice in one-fourth inch slices. They may be served rolled or flat like noodles but cut in one-fourth inches and serve with the sauce.

THE SAUCE:

Place the tomatoes in a saucepan with carrots, onion, garlic cloves, parsley sprigs, sugar, pepper, bay leaf, and chicken stock. Bring to a boil, lower the heat and simmer until the vegetables are soft. Remove from the fire and puree the vegetables. Reheat and season if necessary. Pour over the crepes and serve with ample quantity of grated Parmesan cheese.

Serves 4-6.

Miss America . . . A Non-Stop Beauty

There she is . . . polished, pretty and articulate under any circumstances, Miss America of 1974, Rebecca Ann King could easily write a book about beauty-on-the-go.

Instead, she'll be off to law school, on her way to becoming a judge.

The lovely Colorado blonde copes with a schedule that is a rough sentence for any future "your honor." This sometimes has her riding in a parade, giving a speech, attending a luncheon and a dinner on the same day.

Though she's required to be a poised and beautifully groomed center of attention, she feels far from being exploited. "This is the world's largest scholarship program for women, after all. It's non-profit, and I keep any money I earn with no manager's fees or kickbacks," she points out.

Becky has developed her own system for keeping at her beautiful best. With little time for shopping, she plans her wardrobe carefully. "I'm not the floppy chiffon type, so I look for knits that pack beautifully, stay wrinkle-free and are cut so they look graceful walking across a stage," she says.

Her long honey blonde hair really takes a beating from constant styling. She washes often, using lots of conditioner to protect it from dryness. She still prefers electric rollers for instant setting.

Being Miss America has gone more to her hips than to her head, claims Becky. Constant wining and dining adds pounds, while there's little time for systematic exercise. Becky is looking forward to having more time for the sports activities she enjoys, and gearing up for another heavy schedule . . . this time of law school studies.

AN EASY EVENING LOOK that keeps as beautifully poised and polished as its wearer, Rebecca Ann King, Miss America 1974. The slim dress and matching jacket is by Spectator Casuals.

Helpful Hints From Heloise

LET'S HAVE ANOTHER CUP OF COFFEE!

Dear Heloise:

We traveled around for years in the military until we retired six years ago. Bad coffee in different states bothered us because we love a good cup of coffee.

One day my husband suggested I fill a pitcher with water and leave it on the drainboard or stove, and when I made coffee, I would use this water. We have never had a bad cup of coffee since.

Water sitting like that lets the gases escape, and purifies the water. Keep adding water to the pitcher every time you take some out of it.

Mrs. Donald Hall

Florists tell us to let water sit before we water delicate flowers, and we always have to leave it 24 hours before we add it to our tropical fish aquarium. So there must be a reason, and maybe this is it.

At least, my coffee sure seems to taste better . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I just have to share this hint with women like me who scrub floors on their hands and knees.

I went to a sporting goods store and bought some knee pads — the kind used by basketball players. They almost make the job easy!!

Linda Everett

Letter Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I was helping my roommate make dinner, and she asked me to cook four or five cups of rice for five people.

Well, Heloise, I put in five cups of uncooked rice. Just imagine my surprise when we ended up with a gallon and a half of rice!

Good thing I'm not married yet!

Janice Casey

Coed
Don't worry, Janice, that sweet husband would understand. I think this has happened to all of us at one time or another. Now that you're initiated, join the club, honeychile.

Suffrage — Then and Now

August 26 Marks the Day Women Were Given Right to Vote

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — All right, quick now, why do American women celebrate August 26?

Answer: It marks the day when 54 years ago the 19th Amendment giving women the right to vote was proclaimed part of the Constitution.

That was one liberation milestone. But actually, the women's lib movement in America began formally 126 years ago when Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, fighting for the rights of women as well as against slavery, called a women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, N.Y.

through its trials and tribulations down through the years culminating in suffrage in 1920. But that was not the final chapter by any means.

Along came Betty Friedan with her celebrated liberationist book, "The Feminine Mystique," and then in 1968 formation of the National Organization for Women.

There are many other rights, including passage of the Equal Rights Amendment forbidding job discrimination because of sex.

But it is NOW that keeps the liberation movement fueled the most vocally. It really caught fire with observances, demonstrations, and marches in 1970 to mark the 50th anniversary of suffrage.

Today, NOW numbers more than 700 chapters and counts more than 50,000 members in the United States. They come from all age groups and all stations in life, urban and rural.

The organization has cranked up a number of projects among its chapters to make August 26 a day for all to note. It leaves observance plans up to individual chapters.

But Carole De Saram, a vice president of the New York chapter and national coordinator for the anniversary, outlined some of the things scheduled.

Maybe there'll be no marches down Fifth Avenue, as in 1970, but "we're still just as activist," said Ms. De Saram. "We're taken seriously now, not ridiculed."

NOW's new national president Karen DeCrow, a 36-year-old Syracuse lawyer, author and lecturer, is preparing to hit the speaking circuit again, said NOW's New York Chapter.

At Seneca Falls, where it really all started, the chapter plans a dinner at which the Rev. Merrill Bittner, of Webster, N.Y., is a scheduled speaker. The deacon is one of 11 women ordained as Episcopal priests recently in Philadelphia, an act condemned by their bishop as a defiance of church law and tradition.

Another group, the Women's Hall of Fame, planned induction of two descendants of famous suffragettes, Aline Rossi of the Seneca Falls NOW chapter identified them as Rhoda B. Jenkins, an architectural engineer from Greenwich Conn., granddaughter of Mrs. Stanton, and Doriot A. Dwyer, first women flutist with the Boston Symphony, great-grandniece of Susan B. Anthony.

There'll be "FBI" posters for the 10 most wanted men, FBI stands for Feminine Bureau of Investigation" and Ms. DeSaram said local chapters would decide on the most wanted "public enemies who have committed mass crimes in violation of federal and state civil rights laws and are still at large."

Chapters are making flags to draw attention to the fact five states still are needed for ratification of ERA. The flag in this case will have 33 stars and will go on display on public buildings "by whatever devious means we can find to get them there," said Ms. DeSaram.

She's not sure there'll be a repeat of the Los Angeles chapter's huge cookout last August 26. Its members roasted a "male chauvinist pig." A real porker, it was.

DEAR ABBY: Indeed the letter from the girls in the coed dorm who protested the presence of men in their bathing and toilet facilities was no put on.

I am a psychotherapist who has counseled college students since 1942, and the bizarre situation they describe is common.

Coed living is creating severe emotional problems for college men and women. Impotence in college men is now a common symptom — the result of a culture that pushes sexual performance. Some girls panic because of sexual pressure; others become overly aggressive.

It is totally unfair to pay for a double room in a girls' dorm and then end up sharing it with a girl and her boyfriend. The only way to escape being an observer to her roommate's sexual activities is to find some other place to sleep.

I have had this same picture from male and female students from every coeducational residential college or university that has been represented in my patient load.

The schools are doing harm and injustice not only to the minority, but also to the students whose vote is regarded as an order by the administration. This is one reason psychiatric treatment of college students has increased in volume. The universities need to hear a voice of sanity. Abby, please take a serious look at this widespread problem.

CONCERNED COUNSELOR
DEAR CONCERNED: I am looking, but it's sometimes hard to believe what I see. For example, this letter from a Washington (D.C.) STAR-NEWS reader:

DEAR ABBY: I am surprised by the amazing stupidity you exhibit in some of your answers. The most recent deals with those two modest girls in Scripps Women's college, who are offended by the sight of men sharing their sleeping and bathing facilities.

As I understand it, the male 24-hour visitation policy was established three years ago by a majority vote, and is upheld by the college authorities. Any girl who wishes to make other living arrangements can do so, therefore the ladies who are offended have no legitimate complaint.

Your comments were an even greater surprise when you suggest that 98 per cent of the dorm find another place to live! Someone in your

Levitt Display Is Held Over

Bone Hollow Arts Gallery, recently opened in the Stone Ridge-Accord area, has extended its summer season for an additional week beyond the previously announced closing date.

Public response to the current exhibition of oil paintings by artist Harvey Levitt has prompted Bone Hollow owner Ralph Neaderland to continue the Levitt display through the Labor Day weekend holiday.

Levitt's paintings, based on the Greek tragedies, may be viewed, now through early September at the gallery, located on Bone Hollow Road, Stone Ridge-Accord.

Van Aken Wiltwyck Champion

KINGSTON
By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Bill Van Aken rallied from a three-hole deficit with three birdies on the last three holes to edge Brian Smith 1-up Sunday in the 36-hole Wiltwyck Golf Club championship finals.

So, what's new? Well, for one thing it was Van Aken's first Wiltwyck championship since 1952. But there's an explanation. In the interim he enjoyed a long and productive stay at Woodstock Country Club where he won 10 championships before returning to the Wiltwyck fold after it became an 18-hole layout.

Three down with seven holes left to play after losing three straight holes, the old warhorse pulled himself together with three super shots to play the final nine in 2-under-par 34.

But it was a crucial par 3 on the 11th (29th) hole that Van Aken considered the turning point of the match. There he was trapped on his drive while Smith was on the green about 30 feet from the pin.

"I had lost three holes in a row and I had a bad lie in the trap," Van Aken explained. "When I got out and sank the six-footer for a par I figured I still had a chance."

Van Aken had missed a 15-inch putt on the 18th hole in the morning, a 2-footer on the first hole in the afternoon round and scuffed his approach shot on the 11th (29th) to fall three behind Smith, who was hot in pursuit of his first major victory.

"If Brian had won that third hole, I would have been in real trouble," Van Aken added. "He was putting as well as anybody I have seen this season, especially on the short ones."

It was a tough loss for Smith, one of the area's consistently fine players through the years but never a champion. His chances for a landmark first win with seven holes remaining appeared excellent until Van Aken called on his memory bank.

The first of the supershots came on the par-five 30th (12th) after Van Aken had rolled in his clutch 6-footer on the 11th leaving Smith 3-up.

Van Aken's drive on the 30th hole landed among the trees on the left side of the fairway. A spectacular 4-wood recovery left him 20 feet from the pin in two. Smith, short of the green pitched 6 feet past cup. Van Aken left his bid for an eagle-2 two inches short but Smith missed from six feet and his lead was cut to two holes.

After halves with pars on the 31st and 32nd holes, Van Aken pushed his teeshot into the light rough on the lower right side of the fairway on the 15th (33rd) then whistled a 5-iron to within 3 feet of the cup for Super Shot No. 2. Smith missed the green and was 2 feet short on his pitch shot, but Van Aken closed him out with a birdie-3.

Van Aken missed a birdie by two inches from 30 feet on the par-3 sixteenth (35th). Smith went 18 inches past from 18 feet to halve the hole and leave him one up.

Both were on the green in three on the par-5 seventeenth (35th). Smith 15 feet away. Van Aken 10. Smith's bid for a birdie-4 was short by two inches but Van Aken rolled in his downhill 10-footer for the birdie-4 that pulled him even.

Hard Hats Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Hard Hats, sparked by catcher Bill Bell's three-run homer in the third inning, defeated York, Pa., 7-6 Sunday for the championship of the American Slowpitch Softball League World Series.

Pittsburgh, the only undefeated team in the double elimination tournament, entered the finals with wins over Mansfield, Ohio, and Connecticut.

Smith fashioned 38-38-76 in the morning round, while Van Aken was carding 37-43-77. In the afternoon, Van Aken rebounded from his front nine with 34-74 to Smith's 38-37-75.

American Yankees Win Round Robin

KINGSTON
The Kingston American League Yankees pulled ahead of the Town of Esopus League's Starlings with an eight-run explosion in the fourth inning at Elmendorf Field, then hung to post a 13-7 victory to win the Kingston Area Little League Girls Softball Round Robin Tournament.

Sylvia Armstrong was the winning pitcher, but she gave up all seven of Esopus runs in the second to get in trouble. She helped herself out of the game, including two triples jam by slamming four hits in and a double, and drove in five runs to lead the Yankees comeback.

The Starling got only four hits in the contest, two of them doubles by Linda Whitaker and Mary O'Connor, and went the fifth inning. Mary Beckwith, Peggy Petro and Sue Schneider all had two as the Yankees ripped 15 hits each for the winners.

Utah Offers 'Million-Plus' Contract to Moses Malone

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association have offered 6-foot-11 high school phenomenon Moses Malone a multi-year contract "well in excess" of a million dollars and will attempt to sign him after a 7 a.m. meeting today at the 19-year-old's Petersburg, Va., home.

Meanwhile, Coach Lefty Driesell of the University of Maryland, where Malone was scheduled to begin freshman classes this week, rushed to attempt to dissuade his hope for a national championship from joining the pro ranks.

A university spokesman said Driesell had told him the Stars had "hidden him (Malone) out." "I think they are taking advantage of him," the spokesman quoted Driesell. "They are not giving him the opportunity

Zoning Survey Results

Favor Restrictions in Olive

The Town of Olive Zoning Commission has released the results of a survey of town residents to determine their attitudes toward a proposed zoning ordinance.

The Commission sent out 1,878 questionnaires to town residents, asking their opinions on specific parts of the proposed ordinance. The town is now operating under an interim zoning ordinance adopted in December, 1972.

The proposed ordinance sets up three residential categories, subdivided into Highway Conservation Residential, with 10-acre minimum lot sizes; Rural Residential, with 3.5 acre lot sizes; and Exurban Residential, with one acre minimum lot sizes.

Town residents approved the Conservation Residential category by 380 to 75. Rural Residential was approved by 378-69, with separate votes on preferred lot sizes, with 71 selecting two acres, 124 three acres, 32 four acres, and 148 five acres as the most desirable.

Asked if the Exurban Residential zones should have larger than one acre minimum lot sizes, Olive residents approved, 252 to 203. Of the voters approving, 118 selected a two-acre minimum and 130 a three-acre minimum lot size as most desirable.

Another question asked: "If your area were not developed and you had your choice, what minimum lot size would you choose if this area were to be developed?" A total of seven persons selected a half acre, 122 said one acre, 103 two acres, 83 three acres, 11 four acres, 92 five acres, and 28 said 10 or more acres.

The Commission has also set up proposed commercial areas, subdivided into Highway Business and Village Business categories. Asked if the amount of commercial land in the Highway Business category is satisfactory, town residents approved 320-99.

Asked if there should be any restrictions on the Highway Business category, voters responded affirmatively by a 297-112 margin. A question asking if the proposed one-half acre minimum lot size should be increased to one acre, they approved, 288-136. A similar question about increasing minimums from one-half to one acre in the Village Business category also was approved, 251-154.

Asked how long they had lived in the town, 30 respondents said one year, 27 two years, 41 three years, 27 four years, 24 five years, 66 from five to 10 years, and 218 more than 10 years. In response to a similar question asking if they had studied the proposed zoning ordinance, 226 said yes, 337 said fully, 104 partially, and 116 not at all.

Free Lunches in Saugerties Schools

SAUGERTIES — The Saugerties Central School District has announced a free lunch policy for school children unable to pay full prices.

A child will be eligible for free lunches if there is one person in the family unit and the annual gross income does not exceed $2,910. Corresponding gross income limits for families of various sizes are: two in family unit, $3,830; three, $4,740; four, $5,640; five, $6,480; six, $7,310; seven, $8,060; eight, $8,810; nine, $9,150; and ten, $10,190, with $670 added for each additional family member.

Provision is made for uncontrollable financial hardships. Families falling within these limits are urged to apply for free lunches for their children by filling in the application forms sent home with each child. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

The form is simple to complete, provision is included for foster children and information provided will be held confidential and used only to determine eligibility.

Building principals will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents dissatisfied with their rulings may ask for a review by Robert M. Moser, director of administrative services, in the Administration Building, Hill Street, Saugerties, who has been named the hearing officials.

County Has Flu Shots for Senior Citizens

KINGSTON — Flu shots will be available in Ulster County to senior citizens, persons over 60 and persons retired because of medical or physical conditions. The dates and locations where the vaccine will be administered by the Ulster County Health Department are as follows:

Ellenville—Sept. 5 and 19 from 10 to 11 a.m. and Oct. 17 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the Ellenville Office of the Ulster County Health Department.

Highland—Sept. 9 from 10 to 11 a.m. and Oct. 11 from 3 to 4:30 p.m. at St. Augustine Episcopal Church, Grand and Wilcox Avenue.

'So What' Reaction to Suffrage

United Press International — Today is a holiday of sorts — Women's Equality Day, commemorating the 54th anniversary of women's suffrage.

Although one man thought the idea was a "good one" and wanted to take the day off to celebrate, many women surveyed by United Press International greeted the day with a so-what attitude.

"I hardly think that President Ford's making it a holiday is going to make a difference," said Julie Kresen, 27, a health and legal researcher for the Chicago Women's Liberation Army. "I think that Ford is so intent into establishing a new image, he's trying to be everybody's buddy.

"If it's sincere, that's great. But it probably is a PR (public relations) effort. I think we have to wait and see."

"I think it's kind of important, but it's tokenism," said Nancy Dawson, 23, a clerk in the Blue Shield office in San Francisco. "It's additional recognition of the women's movement, but I don't think it means there is really any sort of equality—in any field."

Kim Watson, an employee of the Baptist Home Mission Board in Atlanta, said she had heard about the day "on TV or something."

Lefky Brakes Plastic Bike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manufacturers of a "revolutionary plastic bike" have been ordered to appear in court for allegedly selling up to $8 million in unregistered stock. Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has reported.

Lefkowitz said Sunday night the owners of several corporations producing and promoting the plastic bicycle sold "at least $600,000 and as much as $2,000,000 through the solicitation of investors in New York City, Poughkeepsie and other states" without being registered with the state's Department of Law.

An affidavit charges that one of the companies, OPB of America, Inc., alone authorized the sale of two million shares of stock to be sold at $4 a share and that "an undetermined amount has already been sold so that the total sale could reach $8 million."

Lefkowitz said that there were at least 100 investors from the Poughkeepsie area but "significantly, none of their names appear on the corporate books and records as shareholders."

In an effort to "cover up" the illegal stock sale, Lefkowitz said two of the corporate owners, John Marzullo and Roger Stark, issued promissory notes dated six months in advance "in an apparent attempt to induce investors to return the unregistered stock certificates."

The affidavit charges that Marzullo and Stark issued the notes "to buy more time and keep the heat off" because they knew they couldn't meet the notes' financial obligations.

Lefkowitz said the group promoted their invention as a "revolutionary plastic bike" and threw a $20,000 cocktail party on the roof garden of the St. Mortiz hotel to help generate national publicity.

Supreme Court Justice Nathaniel T. Helman signed the order requiring Marzullo, of Dix Hills, N.Y., and Stark, of North Bergen, N.J., to appear in court Sept. 24.

She said, "I think it's pretentious of the government, or whoever it is — it's probably the government — to say 'Oh, we're going to have a national women's day,' and think that's going to help the rest of the year. And all the male chauvinists can stand up and say, 'Oh, we give you one day a year of freedom.'"

Eva Felton, 26, a key punch operator from Countryside, Ill., said, "It's all right to celebrate getting the vote, but all this liberation stuff . . . Now they want to take over men's jobs. I was quite satisfied. I don't want to be a bus driver, or any of that."

"I think it's a good idea," Michael Boyle, 27, a Chicago electrician said. "Most of the guys my age agree. I'd like to take the day off from work. It's a good reason to take the day off. Lots of them (holidays) are ridiculous."

Business Group Cites Opposition

SAUGERTIES Village Business Association Inc. has gone on record in opposition to the Village of Saugerties providing water and sewage facilities to a proposed development located outside the village, according to Mrs. Joan Feldman, spokeswoman for the group.

The association is not, however, opposed to the development itself, known as Bathage Development.

The business group, meeting in a special session recently said it feels the 22-acre shopping complex on the village line in the Town of Saugerties, will thwart future in-village development because it would be using village water and sewage facilities.

As long as there are families, there'll be family-size cars.

Of course a family-size car won't match the mileage of a compact. It isn't meant to. It's meant to haul lots of things around. Things like little leaguers and bowling buddies and sorority sisters. And families.

If your needs are smaller, you may be better off in a smaller car. Two-car families can use both sizes.

Your new car dealer makes this suggestion: buy as much car as you need, but no more.

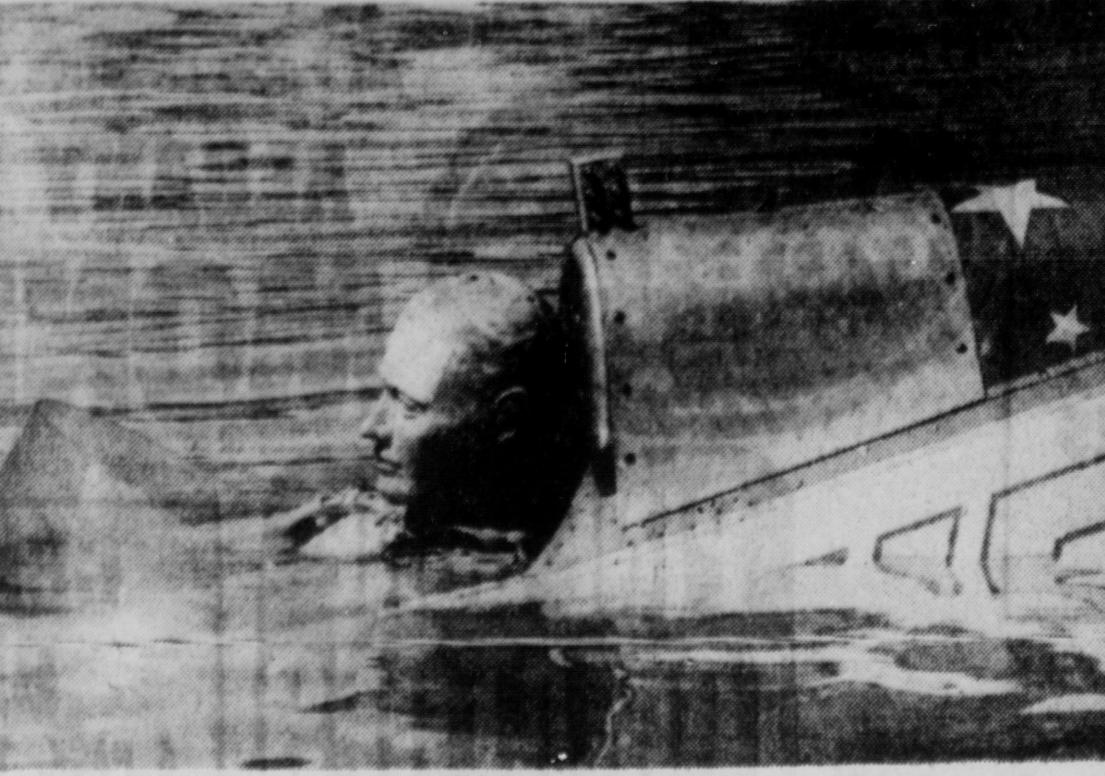

Then take care of it so you don't waste gas. Keep your engine tuned and your tires properly inflated. And drive with a light touch on the accelerator. Ignore these simple tips and gas mileage can drop as much as 50% in any car, large or small.

We ask only that you do your part to conserve energy while you're doing the right thing for your family.

LEGAL NOTICES

Section of Water) of the Environmental Conservation Law, and Public Law 92-500 Section 401 (a) (1), and Part 806 of the Official Compilation of Codes, Rules and Regulations of the State of New York, County of Ulster, c/o Honorable Robert Keider, Ulster County Office Building, P.O. Box 483, Kingston, New York 12401 has filed an application with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation at its Regional Office at New Paltz where the application and published rules and regulations for administration of the law are available for public inspection.

The applicant requests that he be issued a permit to place approximately 15,000 cubic yards of clean white sand for beach fill along a 1200 foot section of Hudson River shoreline. The sand will extend approximately 100 feet off the west shore and will create a beach elevation of approximately 4.5 feet above mean high water. This site is located at St. George's Beach, 1.6 miles north of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, Ulster County, New York.

The applicant further requests that the project be certified that there is a reasonable assurance that such activity will be conducted in such a manner as not to violate applicable water quality standards. Any person interested in this application who wishes to become a Party in Interest in this proceeding in accordance with the published rules and regulations of the Department must notify the undersigned in writing on or before the 6th day of September, 1974, stating specific areas of interest.

Any Party in Interest will be eligible to be heard if a public hearing is ultimately held in connection with the application.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

ONE GIRL: (Q.) I have a big problem. I met this girl at the end of school. I really liked her a lot. But she told me to get lost. That just totally ripped me apart inside.
NOV: Now I feel that I am a big nothing and always will be. When she told me, I felt like taking an overdose and ending my life. I still feel that way. Please help me.—Empty Inside In Indiana
(A) Don't let one girl turn you into a nothing.
Your ripped-apart feeling will go away. Millions of boys and men have had it lived.
Give it time and treat it with another girl.
SOON: (Q.) My boy friend wants to get married in September. I told him I would!
But my mother doesn't like him, because my aunt doesn't like him. My mother doesn't know him. She hasn't even seen him. How can I get her to like him? How can I tell her we are getting married? What should I do? I will be 16 in October. He will be 23 in November.—Engaged in New York
(A.) Put first things first. What your mother and aunt think about your boy friend is less important than the fact that you are much too young to be married now.
Tell your boy friend that, and don't let him re-talk you into promising to marry him next month.
If he remains friendly, introduce him to your mother.

Bar Harbor Coastal Retreat

A View of Rocky's Compound

SEAL HARBOR, Maine money by reading the phone book. After their name are separate listings for cottage No. 1, cottage No. 2, cottage No. 3, cottage No. 4, boat house, gate house and so forth.

The Rockefeller compound is on an acre and a half spit of land that hooks out into the ocean so that it looks back at Seal Harbor.

The first thing you see is the boathouse, a weather-beaten structure covering the area of a football field. "Actually it's an old coal wharf," Rockefeller explained. "The three-masted schooners came along and unloaded coal and wood and a train hauled them into town."

Now, in addition to housing the boats, it also is one of many galleries for Rockefeller's art collection. It includes many Oriental wall hangings, bronzes, and, more recently, the mural-sized Picasso tapestries that once hung in the governor's mansion in Albany, N.Y.

The small fleet downstairs includes a 65-foot yawl "Queen Mary," which Rockefeller and his wife Happy sail alone, three motorboats and a five-place rubber motorboat that caught Rockefeller's eye at the New York boat show.

The main house, surrounded by water on three sides, is not pretentious by Rockefeller standards. (John D. Rockefeller Jr., his father, had a 107-room "cottage" with 2,280 windows, 42 fireplaces and 22 bathrooms. "The place became a tax burden and was torn down in 1963.")

Rockefeller's current home was completed in 1939 and was designed by Wallace K. Harrison, architect of Rockefeller Center.

"Nelson brought him out here and said, 'I want to be able to see that view and that view and that view,'" an aide said, "and that's what he got."

The result was a six-bedroom house of native stone and unpainted pine that curves and bends, with an occasional corner. It blends into the evergreen trees.

"The staff isn't large — an upstairs maid, a kitchen maid, another one down stairs, a French cook — no butler or chauffeur, just a caretaker," the aide explained.

It is here that Nelson and Happy get up, usually at 7:30 each morning for a quiet breakfast together in a room decorated with more of Abby Aldrich Rockefeller's Oriental art.

"I eat yogurt — plain yogurt — but that doesn't take any fixing," Rockefeller said when asked if he, like President Ford, fixed his own breakfast. "Happy tried it for a while, but she didn't like it — she's an eggs and bacon girl."

GOP November Outlook Improved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A UPI survey found Republican leaders across the country, many of whom felt state delighted with their new-found approach in November found election prospects.

as long as Richard Nixon was Oregon Republican Chairman president, now are exuberant Dave Green said Ford's take about their party's chances in over "dramatically improved congressional and state elections."

His California counterpart, Gordon Luce, said there was a "new spirit and enthusiasm ... there has been a complete change in only a few days."

"A whole new mood prevails," Illinois GOP Chairman Don Adams said. "It's got to be over before the election."

But they still consider Republicans highly vulnerable on the inflation issue and think the new President's "honeymoon" help. We're up."

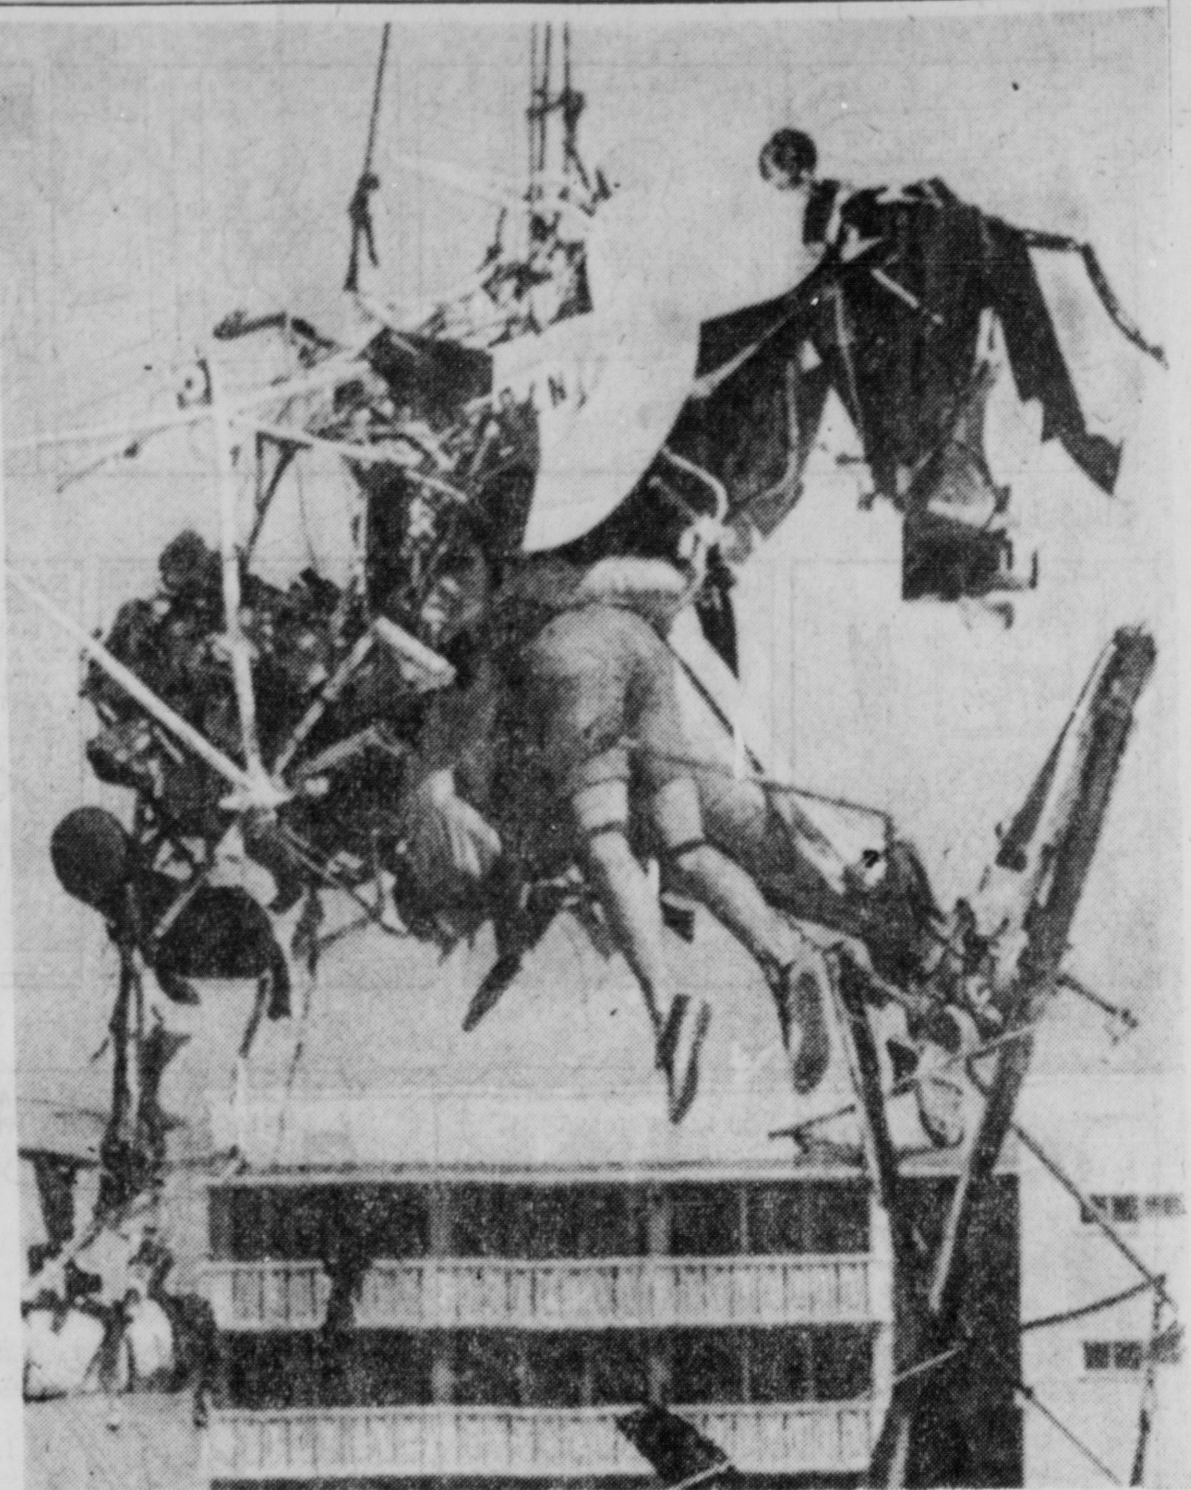

GOP National Committeeman Benjamin Clayburgh said, "It creates an entirely new ball game as far as revival of interest is concerned in the Republican party in North Dakota."

A number of Republicans predicted the party would pick up House seats that would have gone Democratic if Nixon remained in office, and most agreed that GOP candidates who had been expected to win were in even better shape.

That assessment is shared by Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, who said of Democrats would fail to capture about 15 House seats they would have picked up had Nixon stayed. But he predicted deceiving."

Ohio party chairman William A. Lavelle said: "I think our chance in November as they would start administering the moon will be over and they'll be taking a hard look at things like the economy and inflation."

New Hampshire's Democratic Chairman David LaRoché said before November, they're going to be in trouble. National Committee John J. Driscoll said, "So far but it still takes a lot of time to recover."

Face-to-Face Talks on Cyprus

By United Press International

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim called leaders of Cyprus feuding Greek and Turkish communities together today for their first face-to-face talks since fighting broke out on the Mediterranean island six weeks ago.

U.N. sources said Waldheim would meet in the island's capital of Nicosia with President Glafkos Clerides, a Cypriot of Greek origin, and Vice President Rauf Denktash, head of the Turkish community.

The two opposing Cypriot leaders approached the talks hesitantly, however, in view of rival peace plans backed by Greece and Turkey to solve the crisis.

The U.N. sources said Waldheim first planned to meet individually with Clerides and Denktash, shuttling across the "green line" dividing Nicosia.

The island has a population of about 560,000 ethnic Greeks and 140,000 persons of Turkish origin. The two communities have clashed frequently since independence from Britain in 1960.

Denktash canceled an earlier meeting with Clerides to protest a threat by the president to start a guerrilla war to regain sections of the island occupied by Turkish invasion troops.

He said he would discuss only "day to day" problems with Clerides, leaving the island's future to be decided at talks between Greece and Turkey.

A Turkish Cypriot spokesman said Sunday the two rival leaders would discuss the "humanitarian problems" of an estimated 200,000 refugees on the island.

Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, the U.N. high commissioner for refugees, was expected to attend the Greek and Turkish Cypriot talks.

In Athens, the government moved today to formally accept a Soviet plan for an international peace conference attended by Greece, Turkey, Cyprus and the 15 members of the U.N. Security Council.

Diplomatic sources in Washington said the United States and Britain considered the Soviet plan unwarranted meddling in the explosive Cypriot crisis.

The Istanbul government favors revival of the suspended Geneva peace conference at London. "We can't leave the Turks to their fate. If the Greeks refuse to come to the conference table, there will be no start administering the northern part of the island."

Waldheim flew from Athens Sunday to Nicosia's bombed-out airport, sandwiched between Greek and Turkish lines. He Haluk Ullman, foreign affairs adviser to Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit said in Athens, government officials said Greece would accept the Soviet plan only if the proposed conference "does not turn into another propaganda forum."

The officials said Greece was also preparing to take its case directly to the U.N. General Assembly next month because "indications that at least one major power has already rejected" the Soviet plan.

Independence for Guinea

ALGIERS (UPI) — Portuguese officials and guerrilla leaders gathered in Algeria today to sign an historic agreement providing independence for the African colony of Guinea.

The Algerian Foreign Ministry said Portuguese diplomats and liberation leaders would meet this afternoon to sign the accord, the first step in the breakup of the West's last major colonial empire.

Algerian sources said the Portuguese delegation, led by Foreign Minister Mario Soares, and the African Party for the Independence of Guinea and the Cape Verde Islands already have agreed on the pact.

The Portuguese news agency ANI, in a report from the colony, said the two sides agreed to declare the West African territory independent on Sept. 12.

The Lisbon government told the United Nations Aug. 11 of Portugal's intention to grant the colony independence and support Guinea's admission to the world body.

The insurgent movement, which began a guerrilla war for independence in 1961, plans to call the new nation the Republic of Guinea-Bissau.

The nationalist leaders made a unilateral declaration of independence last September and formed a provisional government headed by President Louis Cabral.

Soares traveled to Algiers Thursday to iron out details of the transfer. The main stumbling block has been the status of the Cape Verde Islands.

The liberation group has insisted on immediate independence for the strategically located islands off Africa's west coast. Portugal has favored delaying independence.

Portuguese Guinea, a triangle of land with a population of about 600,000 persons, is the poorest of Portugal's African territories.

The Cape Verde Islands, located in the Atlantic Ocean some 400 miles off the African coast, has a population of about 250,000 persons.

Portugal already has promised to negotiate independence for its two other African territories — Mozambique and Angola — ending more than five centuries on colonial rule in Africa.

The negotiations over the future of Portuguese Guinea began May 25 in London, but broke up over the Cape Verde issue. The talks reconvened June 13 in Algiers, fell through Aug. 9 and started up again last Thursday.

The talks followed last spring's military coup that ended more than four decades of rightwing dictatorship in Portugal and reversed the Lisbon government's policy of holding on to its African empire.

ENDORSES CAREY — New York Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Rep. Hugh Carey (L) listens as Bronx Borough President Robert Abrams, a candidate for state attorney general, announces his endorsement of Carey at a news conference in New York. Dem Candidates Hold Debates

NEW YORK (AP) — Campaigning in two major Democratic primaries heated up over the weekend with debates among three Senate candidates and gubernatorial hopefuls Howard Samuels and Hugh Carey.

In separate developments, Carey picked up the support of attorney general on a New Democratic Coalition slate headed by Samuels.

Abrams said he thought Carey would be a stronger candidate against Republican incumbent Gov. Malcolm Wilson.

In their televised debate Sunday, Samuels derided Carey's plan to minimize use of methadone, saying it meant sending 40,000 heroin addicts back on the streets "shooting it up."

Carey, in turn, criticized a proposal by Samuels for a small-scale experiment in heroin maintenance. He also blasted the tough narcotics law put through by former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, claiming half those convicted do not get the sentences required by law.

The candidates also clashed over the issue of parochial aid, with Samuels defending his proposal for a $100 state income tax credit for contributions to parochial schools. Carey said it probably was unconstitutional.

In the other debate, former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark came under attack from his two opponents for the Democratic Senate nomination — Syracuse Mayor Lee Alexander and businessman Abraham Hirschfeld. Alexander accused Clark of

Israeli Call-Up Smooth

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's first peacetime practice mobilization of army reserves neared completion today without any reports of hostilities despite Arab expressions of alarm.

The 24-hour exercise began at noon Sunday with an announcement over the state radio and the broadcasting of such mobilization code words as "Samson and Delilah" and "Slaughtered Chicken."

Some of the reservists were released after three hours. The exercise was reported progressing so smoothly that officials indicated it would be finished in less than the planned time.

The only trouble reported during the exercise was with civilian transport. Radio Israel reported many buses in the cities were mobilized to transport the troops, and long lines formed at bus stops.

The declared purpose of the practice alert, which was well publicized in advance, was to test the reserves' readiness for another surprise Arab attack like the one which caught the government and the military command off guard last October.

It was not known how many of the reserves, estimated to total more than 300,000, were called up. Radio Israel said there were "tens of thousands."

Despite Israeli claims that the operation was entirely peaceful and just for practice, the neighboring Arabs accused Israel of war preparations.
